Out and About in August

In the Spirit of Spring this edition brings the readers a warming reflection on a range of Maputo activities, from alternative health workshops in August and September to the most popular exhibitions and eating spots in town. In this edition our readers will learn about Hotel Cardoso's new Italian restaurant which will host an Italian food week in early September in conjunction with the Italian embassy. We also explore the pansy shells on the beaches of Maputo and leaf through Mozambique's latest cookery book. With lots of new activities to join and fresh new classifieds, Living In Maputo looks forward to warmer weather and great cultural diversions in September.

A Terra De Boa Gente

Through the camera lens of Mario Macilau, we glimpse a Mozambique that is sweet, beautiful and starkly harsh. His lens sees things that we would walk by and yet in freezing those moments, they seem so much more significant and representative of the contrasts in Mozambican life. A chapa glanced through a rain drenched windscreen and a sky scene from the bowels of Xiquelene are strangely familiar but out of context, on the wall of an exhibition hall, they are exquisitely beautiful. Mário Macilau demonstrates a conversation with the country of his birth and how its "Boa Gente" live and experience Mozambique. Mario's works are a mixture of documentary style photography and conceptual art, which enable the observer to gain an immediate sensationalist reaction, second and third guessed by the details in the photos which soften or harshen the initial impression. Instituto Camões, showing until the 29th of August . Ave. Julius Nyerere

From the 11th to the 20th of September, Maputo will host the DOCKANEMA festival. During the festival, four locations around the city (Centro Cultural Franco-Moçambicano, Teatro Avenida, Scala and Faculdade de Letras e Ciências Sociais —FLCS-UEM) will show high quality documentary films from around the world (with Portuguese subtitles). The festival will enable viewers to see images from a diverse range of cultures addressing a mirage of social issues. The films intend to provoke and highlight discussions between generations, genders and cultures. The documentary is the genre of film that best reflects the realities of the world, with a depth and timeliness very different from news. It is a medium for publicising the social and cultural struggles of minorities and relations of power which also serves to record the individual stories and experiences which take place between the lines of history. Check out www.dockanema.org for more info.

SMALL WONDERS

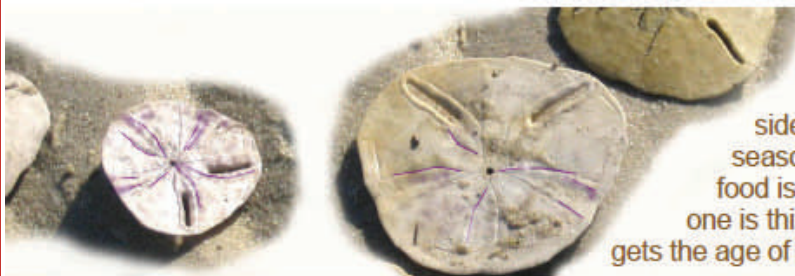

Pansy Shells

Maputo has so many natural wonders surrounding it ranging from the succulent palms of the botanical gardens to the acacia trees which line the avenues. But did you know that our beaches are full of treasures? The pansy shell is so common here, that locals laugh when I gather them into my plastic Shoprite bag and haul them Km's home. They are not edible, but they are surely sellable. In Australia a pansy shell can go for up to US$ 300. Plettenburg Bay in South Africa is well known for its pansy shells. And yet visitors can search for three weeks with out weeks without coming across one. We should count ourselves blessed that our beaches are full of these little gems. They are easy to find. Just walk along the beach opposite Costa Do Sol Restaurant at low tide and you will find hundreds of them, both living and dead. More than your arms can carry. Please don't take the living ones out of their habitats but the dead shells are beautiful viewing pieces.

Although named a shell, the Pansy Shell is not a shell at all, but in fact a living organism that having the best of both worlds is born as a male, and later transforms forms into a female enabling it to further the species. The fragile Pansy shells are like Sea Urchins, with flattened, irregular shells, which live buried in the sand. When the Pansies are alive, they are a purplish blue in colour and the body is covered with fine short spines resembling fur, not unlike the porcupine needles of the ordinary Sea Urchin. The shells which are distinguishable as a flat white disc with the pattern of a Pansy Flower with five petals embossed on the top surface are the skeletons of the pansy's which have died and have been washed up onto the shore. When it dies it takes about a week for it to be bleached creamy white by the salt and the sun.

The age of the Pansy can be calculated by the rings or platelets found on the under side, like a tree stump. The summer season produces a larger ring (when food is more plentiful) and the winter one is thinner. By counting the rings one gets the age of the Pansy Shell.

The Maputo Express

Why not let your —small wonders|| board the Maputo Express ride on Sundays. This small, colourful train will take kids and parents around the city on an informative and fun ride. Health and Well Being

Alternative Therapies

It is interesting that Maputo is advancing in leaps and bounds within the area of alternative medicine, Within the last year, three important well-being facilities have opened in the city along with a host of classes from Pilates and Hatha yoga to meditation and reflexology. Catembe has just seen a wonderful weekend of Yoga and Dance and in the next month, two workshops will be held which will widen the field of alternative therapies in Maputo.

Self Development Workshop

Lígia de Noronha (transpersonal psychologist - www.ligiadenoronha.com) will hold a unique workshop which will "allow us the possibility of better understanding the origin of our fears, defences and conflicts, as well as our inner strength, and what we need to gradually change and how to do it.

This process leads us to the Development of Self-Love and to the use of our Mastery Power. The results can be immediate and can reflect positive changes in all the areas of our lives. The way we see ourselves, the way we feel and react to others change completely.

We will focus our inner work on the following items (amongst others):

- Childhood & adolescence of the majority of us (their influence in adulthood);
- Relationships with parental figures and other family members (transforming guilt, co-dependence, anger and resentment);
- Love relationships (common problems and possible solutions);
- The work we were born to do (from resignation and/or frustration to self-fulfillment and personal satisfaction).

Dates: September, 26-27, from 09h00 until 17h00.

Venue: to be decided/informed (via e-mail/phone) according to no. of registrations

Investment: 2.500 meticais / person Contact: Fátima – 82 830 2380

Note: On the above mentioned dates, this workshop will be facilitated in Portuguese (direct & simple); in case there will be a group (minimum 10 people) interested in having it in English, this is possible, and therefore another schedule (only up until October 9th) is agreed according to people's availability. For further details, please contact Lígia directly: ligia@ligiadenoronha.com.

Neurolinguistic Hypnotherapy

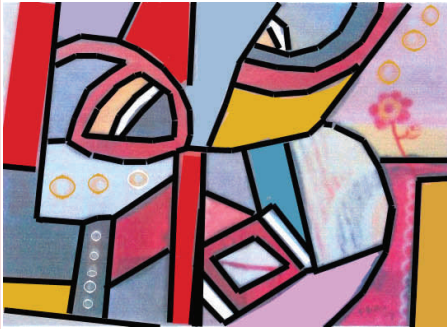

Shelina Nazin is a Neurolinguistic Hypnotherapist, psychologist, EFT therapist and a consultant living in Dubai. Shelina will be visiting Mozambique in order to offer her services to those interested in empowering themselves through connecting with their inner strength.

—First and foremost, hypnosis is about change and transformation oriented for all those who choose to let go of limiting fears, choose to change behaviours, beliefs and habits that no longer serve them. Hypnosis is not something one —does|| to another but rather an in-born talent that, when used with the guidance of an experienced hypnotist, you can expect to make the changes you choose to make, We can define hypnotherapy as the bypass of theoretical factors of the conscious mind and consequent acceptance of suggestions of change in the subconscious mind.

CULTURE BEAT

Encontro de Ateljers

This meeting of four very different artistic minds gives us a wonderful flurry of textures, forms and colours. The intricate cartoonish images by Adelino Vasco Mendonça deserve exploration. The forms appear simple but upon close observation, there are many details which engage the mind and to a certain extent, one's humour. The curving, exquisitely glazed and detailed ceramic pieces of Mapfara change form and meaning at each angle, making them very much living pieces of art. Jorge Sibia's explosive paintings are magnetic even from outside the gallery. The strong colours and geometric lines communicate intense strength of character and opinion whilst challenging our set assumptions about abstract art. Finally the sensitive wood carvings of Talanga (influenced by his colleague Pekiwa) are thought provoking and moving. The human bound forms speak to the traditional images we know in Mozambican art, but with curious manifold undercurrents of hope and serenity. Encontro de Atel-jers is presently running at the Photographic Institute on Julius Nyerere until the 23rd of August

Flavours of Moçambique

A new cooking book has made a quiet but firm entry onto the shelves. It boasts the best recipes in Mozambican cuisine. From Cajun Tuna and paw paw salad to Coconut ice cream, this delicious page turner is a must for those who enjoy the national fare.

Although the recipes are traditional, some of them have a unique and zesty twist to them. Goat stew with a dash of coffee is one of the strange but wonderful options. The book was compiled by Gill Mc Innes and Jenny Flint who have found the time to put together their favourite dishes whilst living on a beautiful island off the Mozambican coastline. As the intro says —Challenged by the absence of convenience stores... with lots of imagination and inspired by the wealth of fresh naturally organic local produce, they have created this unique range of delicious recipes.

—Flavours of Moçambique can be found on shelves in Mozambique and South Africa, but just in case you cant track it down, contact the distributors Qualco Lda on +258 82 71 72311 or email qualcooc@gmail.com for more information on distribution.
